OBC Northwest, Inc. was established in 1954 as a textile bag company, converting burlap, polypropylene, cotton and leno mesh into many different types of bags. By 1980 they had expanded the company into the horticulture industry, starting with the treating of burlap for nursery squares and sandbags. Today, the company is strongly placed as one of the leaders in greenhouses, plastic containers, shade cloth, soil and amendments, labels and many more quality products for the horticulture industry.

Every person at OBC Northwest is committed to one common goal, the total satisfaction of their customers. "We believe we do this better than anyone in the business and we strongly believe this has contributed to our success for the past forty-nine years," says president Tracy Boyce. "From manufacturing, customer service, purchasing, warehouse and delivery, we all work hard to take care of the customer and to ensure that they will always have a positive experience with OBC Northwest."

OBC Northwest's commitment to its customers is spelled out in their service philosophy. "Everyone at OBC Northwest will have an obsession for turning in the best possible performances on every job...in every department...for every customer...everyday!"
